SHE CAME ROMPING UP TO THE LINE

THE NORTH JERSEY COAST

ACCESSIBILITY, combined with natural advantages possessed by no other stretch of coast from Maine to Mexico, has made the North Jersey coast not only the summer home of thousands of families of New York and all the New Jersey cities, but "the summer playground of the nation," as it has been aptly termed. It is not a "stern and rock-bound coast" that greets the summer pleasure-seeker, but rather the glinting spray from every sun-kissed wave and the balmy breath of the ocean that smile and breathe a welcome.

Though from the green-topped hills of Atlantic Highlands to the shelving beaches at Point Pleasant is a stretch of some twenty-five miles, cities and towns and villages follow one another in such close succession that this whole region is more like one great community. There is a railroad station for nearly every one of the twenty-five miles of shore line, and the splendid transportation facilities afforded by the all-rail lines and Sandy Hook Route steamers of the Central Railroad of New Jersey make this whole section from spring to fall a vital, throbbing part of the great suburban zone of the Metropolitan district.

Every kind and condition of man can find a place to his liking on this wonderful shore. There are localities in which the millionaire is exclusive. There are communities where the business man may leave his family in a comfortable home or a sumptuous hotel while he is attending to the daily routine in the city. And there are places where the man of moderate means can take his family for his two or three weeks' outing and find comfortable quarters at reasonable prices. And in front of them all is the glorious Ocean, and behind them the healing air of the Jersey pines stretching inland for several miles.

One feature of the Central Railroad's service, which really deserves a separate chapter, is its line of swift steamers which run at frequent intervals during the summer from the foot of West Forty-second Street and Cedar Street, New York, to Atlantic Highlands. There connections are made at the pier with fast trains on the Sea Shore Branch for all points on the coast, as well as along the south shore of Raritan Bay. The Sandy Hook Route fleet comprises the "Asbury Park," the "Monmouth," and the "Sandy Hook," the speediest craft of their class afloat, and it is a common experience for their passengers to be thrilled by spirited brushes between these marine flyers and the fast yachts and liners that traverse the bay. From the hundreds of thousands of people who have enjoyed the sail to Atlantic Highlands, but one complaint is heard—that the trip is all too short.

There is much that is unique in the topographical location of Atlantic Highlands. Built on a magnificent headland forming the northern extremity of the Highlands of Navesink, a marine perspective of exceptional beauty spreads to the eastward—in the immediate foreground, Sandy Hook Bay, resembling a great lake with Sandy Hook peninsula across its broad expanse; beyond, the Atlantic, with the Long Island shore in the distance. A step inland from the water's edge, with only the steel highway of the Central intervening, heavily wooded hills rise abruptly. Indeed, the town itself, has been likened to the ancient capital of the Caesars in the matter of hills. From this precipitous boundary fertile farmlands stretch to the southward, traversed by pretty, small streams. Of the many pleasures of this attractive resort bathing, sailing, and motor-boating are the most popular. There is excellent shelter in the bay and its several coves, and yachtsmen and devotees of aquatic sports find here an ideal domain.

It is the Highlands of Navesink that give the ocean traveller his last glimpse of America, as well as his first sight of actual land. So, too, by night the piercing gleam from the famous Twin Lights at Highlands, visible a score of miles at sea, guides the transatlantic navigator to Sandy Hook bar. Under the lee of the light houses rests Highlands, another popular resort, between which and Atlantic Highlands the smaller colonies at Hiltons and Water Witch repose snugly on the side of the hill. It is at Highlands that the Navesink River just above its confluence with the Shrewsbury, both winding seaward through a maze of estuaries, flows into Sandy Hook Bay. Between these two streams runs the Rumson Road, one of the finest driveways in the East, and famed throughout the country for the architectural beauty of the magnificent summer residences to which it gives access.

Across the Navesink River is Highland Beach, a favorite surf-bathing rendezvous for the communities above it, while next in order come Normandie, Seabright, Low Moor, and Galilee, principally cottage colonies but with a few big hotels. At Monmouth Beach, just below, all mercantile business is excluded. Though primarily a cottage community it has an attractive inn, a casino, a new pavilion, and a well patronized swimming pool.

TENNIS IS THE VOGUE AT SEABRIGHT

Long Branch, for more than a hundred years a famous pleasure resort, lies on a bluff overlooking an attractive beach. Wealth and fashion flock here until there are many thousands in the city at the height of the season. Great efforts have of late been exerted in various improvements. Ocean Avenue, skirting the edge of the bluff, is one of the celebrated boulevards of the country. Its course is marked by a continuous procession of equipages of the elect, and the paralleling promenade is the scene of a gay parade of pedestrians. West End and Hollywood, where the steamer trains take the tracks of the All Rail Route, are integral parts of the city of Long Branch, and like Elberon, also within the municipal boundaries, and Deal Beach and Allenhurst, still farther to the south, are high-class cottage communities.

With its splendid bathing beach, its famous Boardwalk, its music pavilions, Asbury Park attracts pleasure seekers and season and year-round residents from every part of the country; indeed its summer population is distinctly cosmopolitan. Watching the scene on the several bathing reservations or the crowded esplanade that flanks the broad stretch of sand, especially on Sundays or holidays at the height of the season, one wonders where so many people can come from. There are thousands and thousands of them revelling in the breaking surf or themselves witnessing the animated spectacle. Then there is another side of Asbury Park, a side seldom found in resorts primarily in the seashore class—the two fresh water lakes, Deal and Wesley, which bound it on the north and south respectively, and Sunset Lake about midway between. Most picturesque is the setting of Deal Lake, while on its placid surface rowboats, motor-boats, and canoes ply in great numbers. Another great feature of the season is the children's carnival held during the latter part of August, the baby parade being virtually national in the scope of the entrants and the interest manifested in it. This year, the usual water pageant will be held on Wesley Lake on July 8, instead of later in the season; the Queen's Coronation is set for August 30, the Masque Fête will take place on August 31, and the Baby Parade on September 2.

On the other side of Wesley Lake lies Ocean Grove, in many respects the exact antithesis of Asbury Park. Originally founded by Methodists as a campmeeting ground, much of the old decorum and strict propriety are still sustained. It has a famous auditorium, seating ten thousand persons and containing the largest pipe organ in the country. The Boardwalk, continuing southward along the ocean front, affords a close link with Asbury Park's less sedate attractions.

Adjoining Ocean Grove on the south is Bradley Beach, with Avon next in order. Belmar has besides its ocean front the added advantages of Shark River, long famous for crabbing, and offering fine facilities for sailing. Como, a pretty, wooded spot, separates the town from Spring Lake. The latter, frequently called the "Newport of New Jersey," is noted for the magnificence of its summer homes and the fashionable gaieties of the hotel and cottage contingents. Sea Girt is famous as the site of the summer encampment of the New Jersey National Guard, and here the Governor of the State makes his home during the heated term. Manasquan comes next on the shore, and then Point Pleasant, with its peculiarly fortunate combination of the ocean on one side and the broad Manasquan River on the other.

The first point on the All Rail Route of the Central which appeals to the summer vacationist is Sewaren, situated on a bluff overlooking Staten Island Sound and enjoying the advantages of a sheltered harbor so essential to those who go in for water sports. It is attractively laid out with park-like effect. The same natural conditions prevail at Perth Amboy, one of the oldest shipping ports on the Atlantic seaboard, while South Amboy, across the Raritan River, also shares these advantages. The same may be written of Morgan, or Laurence Harbor, at the mouth of Cheesequake Creek. Weakfish, bluefish, and porgies abound and fine bass are caught here in large quantities.

Matawan, at the junction of the New York and Long Branch Railroad and the Freehold and Atlantic Highlands Division of the Central, offers all the inducements of a highly prosperous farming community. Here in the midst of great berry and tomato farms and the truck gardens that yield the choicest grade of table produce, one gets a real taste of country life and customs. Hazlet, to the southeast, is similarly situated, while Middletown, Revolutionary in its associations, is likewise fortunate in agricultural advantages.

Red Bank, on the banks of the Navesink River, commonly known as the North Shrewsbury, is admirably situated, especially from the viewpoint of aquatic enthusiasts. Here one may indulge in every form of water sports—rowing, sailing, motor-boating, etc. The river is also prolific in its yield of fish and crabs. Along the shore of the Shrewsbury, and in other parts of the town, are some of the handsomest homes in this section, while the famous

CLOSE TO NATURE ON THE MANASQUAN RIVER

Rumson Road leading hence to Seabright, is only one of several roads widely noted for picturesque drives.

Little Silver, on the South Shrewsbury River, concedes nothing to her more ambitious neighbor on the North Branch of the river when it comes to aquatic diversions, many of the residences having private docks. Branchport, on the same stream, and marking the northern section of the city of Long Branch, gives to the latter the same advantages that the other river resorts possess. From Branchport, the All Rail Route goes on to the main station at Long Branch, and thence to West End and Hollywood and the junction with the Sea Shore Branch.

From Matawan the Central tracks also run eastward to Atlantic Highlands, as well as almost due south to Freehold. Following the line of Raritan Bay the railroad traverses a wonderfully fertile and productive farming area, which in addition has the attractions of the bay shore, affording exceptional conditions for summer outings. Freehold, the county seat of historic Monmouth, is a particularly attractive place to lovers of country life, and is the centre of one of the finest agricultural districts in the State. Many of the smaller villages along the Freehold Branch are also popular places of resort during vacation time.

NEW HOTEL BALDWIN, BEACH HAVEN

ATLANTIC CITY

O matter what the season be—Summer, Winter, Spring, or Autumn—Atlantic City's hospitable arms are open in welcome to the seeker after pleasure, or rest, or recreation. It is admittedly the greatest all-the-year resort of the Western Continent. It has been fittingly described as embracing the salient characteristics of the most celebrated European resorts.

Built upon an island seven miles out at sea, its four miles of beach facing southeast, it has, during the summer months, the cooling breezes that sweep in from the broad Atlantic, while in winter the atmosphere is tempered by the Gulf Stream, coursing ever northward a few miles off shore and laden with the warmth of its tropical origin. Ideal climatic conditions supplied the fundamentals that gave Atlantic City its start; it is now even more than weather assets that draw people thither in increasing numbers each year—it is simply because it is Atlantic City. Breast the throng on the four-mile Boardwalk on a summer's day, and you will meet many men of many minds, some of whom will declare for its great hotels, impressively buttressing the Boardwalk. Some will claim the Boardwalk itself—the progenitor of boardwalks and the greatest of them all—is the most potent magnet. Others will acclaim the magnificent bathing beach one of the finest on the whole Eastern Coast—as the pièce de résistance. If one goes to Atlantic City for the sea alone, there is such a broad level stretch of sand, such a generous space for the crushing breakers, that one can be almost in solitude within the toss of a pebble of the bustling, throbbing Boardwalk. For the sea makes for isolation—the roar of breaking billows and the subtle murmur of the ocean effectually silence the roar of talking crowds, the ring of gay laughter, and the obligato of merry music—all that make up the Song of the Boardwalk.

Many will insist that it is this song—of the throng—of the Boardwalk that makes Atlantic City what it is. Yet it is these and all the other attractions that have made the crowd that is so interesting. The motoring enthusiast, the golfer, the fisherman, the hunter, the amateur sailor, all are here, and all find their particular pleasure at hand. Indeed, life at Atlantic City is diversity personified. It has as many points of contact as a diamond and like that precious gem it flashes life from every surface. Its summer sunshine is alluring; its winter sparkle is invigorating; its ever rampant gayety thrills and exhilarates.

With all its glitter and brilliance it is by no means a city of tinsel. While it is in truth a fairyland by night, with its myriad twinkling lights, the great eyes of the hotel windows, its rows and rows of countless incandescents that dim the stars, yet the glare of the morning sun only adds another kind of lustre, revealing new beauties, disclosing unsuspected charms. The little shops displaying their dainty bits of lace and lovely embroideries from far-off countries, their china and crystal, their rare old mahogany and shimmering jewels and fascinating curios—all are now as much a part of Atlantic City as the very sea itself. Then there are the music and the varied attractions of the great piers that provide the "something to do," that mystic lure of pleasure seekers the world over.

BOARDWALK, BEACH, AND PIER, ATLANTIC CITY

Then there is the winter devotee. He will say, rightly enough, that it is the splendidly appointed hotels, with their famous cuisine, their cheery sun-parlors, and their vitalizing sea water baths, and the enjoyment of the Boardwalk, with its rolling chairs and balmy air, that draw him to Atlantic City and hold him there.

One thing that makes Atlantic City so popular is the fact that the man of moderate means can find entertainment and enjoyment as readily as can the man of wealth. The several hundred hotels run the entire gamut on the expense scale, furnishing lavish display and luxury, if such be desired, or simplicity and a correspondingly small outlay, if they be preferred. In this splendid array of hostleries, a daily average of some 300,000 visitors is sheltered during the busy season. Indeed, one reason for the continuous success of Atlantic City is the enterprise and efficiency of its hotel men.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey furnishes splendid service to Atlantic City, its trains making the run from New York in three hours. The ride takes the traveller through miles of the famous pine belt of New Jersey, with its ozone-laden air, and the highly cultivated agricultural section which furnishes New York and Philadelphia with so much of their table necessities.

Although Atlantic City is the principal year-round resort on the coast, the whole southern shore of New Jersey is one great outing place during the summer, and every settlement from Atlantic City to Cape May is thronged with visitors looking for rest and recreation.

THE EXCHANGE, ST. CHARLES HOTEL, ATLANTIC CITY

THE SAINT CHARLES HOTEL — On boardwalk, Newlin Haines, Prop. Open all the year. The St. Charles is one of the newest and finest hotels in Atlantic City. It is located at the water's edge, and seated on the spacious veranda which overlooks the famous Boardwalk, one may almost "lay hold upon the mane of the sea." Two of the most unique and artistic rooms in the St. Charles are the smoking room and billiard and pool room, which also overlook the Ocean. The bedrooms are unusually large and arranged singly or en suite, as desired. The bath rooms are of Italian marble, with hot and cold fresh and sea water; shower attachments. Intercommunicating long distance telephones in rooms. For the winter season the hotel has the best heating system in New Jersey. The cuisine of The St. Charles is above criticism, that department being in charge of a first-class chef. The guest is not only delighted with the menu, always of the best, but with the promptness with which everything is served and with the service of the employees. There is the same systematic courtesy and general refinement in the dining room as in the other portions of the hotel.

THE HOTEL SAN JOSE—132 St. James Place. Ella McNamara, Prop. Open all the year. Is admirably situated. One minute from Boardwalk and easy access to all piers. Ocean view. HOTEL DENNIS, ATLANTIC CITY

HOTEL DENNIS—Walter J. Buzby, Prop. Hotels, like people, have a personality which distinguishes each from the other and cannot be successfully imitated—the predominating features of the Hotel Dennis being comfort, cheerfulness and an ample roominess that charms, alike, the guest seeking rest, or the care-free globe trotter on pleasure bent—it caters to both, it satisfies both. The Dennis is an All-Year-Round Hotel, equipped to give its guests the maximum of comfort, be the season summer, winter, spring or fall, and the weather what it may. It is distinctly a homelike hotel, where hospitality is in the air, and the personality of the management is stamped on all the doings about it. Porch life at the Dennis is one of the pleasing and most restful of its many attractions. Facing the ocean with green lawns in front, the Dennis is so situated that it commands a perfect ocean view. The exchange sun parlor has always been a unique spot in the Dennis. There are no buildings in front of the hotel and it is this outlook which makes the sun parlor so fascinating. Opening from the Reception Hall is the Recreation Parlor with billiard tables and shuffleboards and beyond is the Club Room. Adjoining the Club Room are Committee Rooms.

OCEAN CITY

ORTUNATE indeed is the summer sojourner at Ocean City, with the Atlantic in front of it and Great Egg Harbor between it and the mainland, for it, too, has its Boardwalk and its bathing beach, all out-door diversions and sports, plenty of good hotels, and scores of cottages at moderate rentals for those who wish to maintain the accustomed home life.

While virtually at sea, the lower end of the island on which the city stands is so connected with the coast by low ground that the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in connection with the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, runs its trains direct to Ocean City, excellent service from New York and Philadelphia being maintained. For those who enjoy the adventurous sport, there are boating accommodations a-plenty. The waters of Egg Harbor Bay teem with sailing craft and motor-boats of every kind and description, and also afford safe harbor for the large yachts whose owners delight in deep-sea cruising.

The lover of outdoor sports will be in his element. In addition to boat races, there are baseball games, tennis tournaments, athletic meets, etc. In the late summer a tennis tournament is held in which noted players take part. The Ocean City Motor

BOARDWALK AND PIER, OCEAN CITY

Boat Club is equally progressive in assisting in the sporting and social life of the resort. The thirty-two foot wide Boardwalk is one of the resort's chief attractions. The proximity of Ocean City to the Gulf Stream, and its enjoyment of the trade winds that blow from the southwest during the summer, make it one of the most healthful resorts on the shores of the Atlantic.

Originally laid out as a camp-meeting ground, and famous as such for many years, Ocean City has now advanced to the stage of a general resort for all. There is a large cottage colony, while the hotels and boarding houses are all located within a comparatively short distance of the Boardwalk and beach, and all are easy of access to the railroad stations. The old restrictions still hold, the result of which is prohibition against liquor dealing.

THE BATHING HOUR, OCEAN CITY

Especially worthy of note is the splendid bathing beach, for its location at the centre of the concave dip of the coast line, with a barrier of shoals in front, makes it one of the best protected points on the whole long Jersey Shore. Northeast gales have little effect on the gently shelving beach. Broken on the sentinel shoals, the waves roll landward in swelling breakers, making the bathing particularly delightful. Moreover, the beach is hard and smooth and entirely free from holes, washouts, and quicksands. It makes an ideal course for automobiles. The streets of Ocean City are well laid out and graded with vitrified brick gutters.

THE GARWOOD HOTEL—712 Central Ave. Mrs. M. Garwood, Prop. Home cooking. First-class accommodations. Rates $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

HARRY F. STANTON—Eighth Street, below Asbury Avenue. Cottage and bungalow life at the seashore is becoming more popular each year. The reason for this is not really difficult to perceive. It is caused by the growing desire on the part of the ever-increasing number of seashore sojourners to possess and to occupy, even for a short period, residences of their own, away from the overcrowded and at times disagreeable features of hotel life. I have secured a tract of land that lies practically in the centre of the ocean side of Ocean City; that is, between Second and Third Streets, and between Atlantic Avenue and the Boardwalk, and intersected by Delancey Place, Pennlyn Place and Corinthian Avenue. The Boardwalk extends from North to Seventeenth Streets—two miles.

HOTEL CHELFONT—J. Thomas, Prop. One square from station. Rates $2.50 $3 per day; weekly, $10-18. Accommodates 150. Situated one square from the Beach and Boardwalk. Ocean view. Cuisine the best that money can procure. Rooms are large and lofty. Large sun parlor and basement for children to play in. Special rates for long terms. Both 'phones. Electric lights. Trolley passes the corner.

THE GENIVUER—A. Adams, Prop. Two squares from station. Rates $1.50-2.50 per day; weekly, $10-15. Accommodates 75. Home comforts; open all the year; first class table. Special attention to winter boarders. Electric lights and gas. Both 'phones. Special rates for July and August.

HOTEL OXFORD, OCEAN CITY

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE

THE BELLEVUE HOTEL—J. Williams, Prop. Direct route for automobiles. Splendid accommodation for weary travellers. Table first class. Rooms large and airy. In the Pines. Special rates for long terms. Weekly, $10-15 per day, $2 and up. Five minutes from train and court house. Electric lights.

SEA ISLE CITY

SURELY there is no more exhilarating summer sport than surf bathing. The experienced swimmer knows the thrill that comes from the plunge into the surf, and even to the novice hanging on to the rope there is a consciousness that life is better worth the living after a close communion with Old Ocean. Surf bathing under the safest and most ideal conditions is one of the potent attractions at Sea Isle City. This well-known resort is situated just about midway between Ocean City and Cape May, and like its two neighbors is blessed with the balmy climate that characterizes this section of the New Jersey coast. It is a live, wide-awake place, with good hotel accommodations and many cottages to rent for the season. It has the same splendid railroad service that is given all these coast resorts by the New Jersey Central and Philadelphia and Reading Railroads.

Sea Isle City is a favorite resort for fishing parties, for here are the famous Corson's Inlet sheephead fishing grounds as well as a labyrinth of smaller waterways, teeming with shellfish of every description. Splendid yachting there is, of course, both in the open ocean and in the many inlets and estuaries that afford quiet sailing and safe anchorage.

But it is its beach and bathing facilities that form the crowning glory of Sea Isle City. Situated on an island some seven miles long and about a mile and a half wide, it fronts the broad expanse of the Atlantic with a gently shelving beach of firm hard sand; the configuration is such that there is no dangerous undertow.

BUSCH'S HOTEL—Mrs. A. Busch, Prop. Ocean View. Home comforts. Near beach. German table. Open all year. Rates $2 daily; $10 weekly upwards.

HOTEL BELLEVUE—Mrs. Fritz Cronecker. One square from the Boardwalk. Ocean view. Home comforts. First-class eat. Steam heat. Electric light. Rates $2 per day; $10 per week upwards. Open all the year. Both 'phones.

THE GORDON'S SEA VIEW COTTAGE—G. Taylor, Prop. Directly on the Boardwalk. Splendid ocean view; also beach. Superior table supplied from our own farm. Half square from the trolley; three trains. Convenient to both stations. Rooms large and airy. Rates $2 per day; weekly, $10—16. Both 'phones. Electric light and gas.

THE COLONNADE—Landis Avenue. E. Douglas, Prop. Finest location. Half square from the Beach and Boardwalk. Ocean and bay views. Cuisine we pride ourselves upon, giving the best that money can secure. White help. Accommodates 150. Electric lights. Rates $2.50 per day; $12—18 weekly. Trolley passes the door; both 'phones.

BATHING SCENE AT HIGH TIDE, SEA ISLE CITY

Observe the confidence of the bathers and the shallowness of the water where they stand. No ropes, boats, or other life saving means provided, being considered unnecessary.

WHELEN'S HOTEL—Corsons Inlet, N. J. E. Williams, Prop. Directly on the Bay; splendid fishing; boats for hire. Table first-class. Special rates for long terms.

CAPE MAY

SITUATED at the very jumping off point of Southern New Jersey, with the Atlantic Ocean on one side and Delaware Bay on the other, a spot which Nature would find it hard to improve upon for a summer resort, is located Cape May, one of the oldest seaside resorts in America. For generations Cape May has been famous as a seashore resort, and in ante-bellum days, before Newport was known outside of Rhode Island, it was a regular stopping place for the Southern planters on their way to and from Saratoga. The multiplicity of seaside resorts has not robbed Cape May of its glories.

In natural advantages Cape May is exceptionally favored. Geographically, it is as far south as Washington, and because of the nearness of the Gulf Stream enjoys an equable climate throughout the year, especially free from humidity. The evenness of temperature is little less than remarkable, and observations through a series of years show a percentage of humidity several degrees less than at any other point on the coast. The Government has spent much money on harbor improvements at Cape May, and yachtsmen are always assured of a safe and pleasant anchorage. The Jersey Central, in connection with the Reading Railway, has adequate train service to Cape May.

THE NEW HOTEL HANOVER -- Arch and Twelfth Sts. Wm. C. Richardson, Prop. and Manager. Roy T. Richardson, Assistant Mgr. A modern, up-to-date hotel in every respect. Convenient to all theatres and railroad stations. European plan, $1 per day and upward. Large sample rooms with bath. Long distance phone and running hot and cold water in every room. Five fire escapes and one tower fire escape, accessible from all floors. Two new elevators in constant service. Cafe on office floor. The Hotel Hanover was built in 1894, is one of the most popular hostelrys in the city of Philadelphia. It is situated at the corner of Arch and Twelfth Sts. within a square of the

THE NEW HOTEL HANOVER, PHILADELPHIA

Reading Terminal. One to three squares of all department stores. An immense structure of compressed brick, one of the most imposing of the kind ever built, and prominent for the homelike comforts it provides, desirability of location, and being equipped with all modern features. It has two hundred rooms, all of which are models of comfort and cleanliness, heated by steam, electrically lighted, each room containing hot and cold water and long distance telephone. Toilets and bathrooms for ladies and gentlemen on every floor. Two passenger elevators are in constant service. There is not a hotel in the city where more precaution is taken to guard against fire, there being five fire escapes; also a tower fire escape, accessible from all floors, the stairway of which is entirely surrounded by an 18-inch wall of masonry, running from the top to the first floor, the centre of the stairway being encased with sheet metal. The hotel is run on the European plan, and accommodations afforded for both transient and permanent guests are well and favorably known. Not long ago the hotel was remodelled and refurbished at a cost of $150,000 and everything is up to date. The Hanover has always been a favorite for bridal parties and noted for the number of its lady guests, as well as commercial men; also members of the theatrical profession (as it is convenient to all theatres) to whom the proprietor, being an old theatrical man, is always glad to cater. Reservations will gladly be made for individuals or conventions on application.

IN THE JERSEY FOOTHILLS

NORTHERN New Jersey is a typical vacation region, and nowhere can the lover of country life in summer find a fairer landscape and more peaceful surroundings than in the valleys and uplands that stretch from Somerville to Phillipsburg, and which are traversed by the main line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Country life is supreme in the small towns and villages throughout this territory, and the city dweller can leave noise and trouble behind when he comes within these restful influences.

In this wonderful foothills region, where peace and quiet reign in place of urban rush and tumult, a region whose broad rolling hills, winding roads, sparkling streams, woodland acres, and well-tilled fields afford pervading antidote for cares and worries, there is everything to attract the summer visitor. In the first place, the fertility and productiveness have made this region famous from an agricultural standpoint. It is a wonderful country in which to make crops grow and by the same token it is a wonderful country in which to make people grow—healthy and hearty and full of the joy of living. In this connection, unusual opportunities offer themselves to the farmer, who reaps the harvest of the soil as a means of livelihood, to also reap an incidental harvest of shekels from the summer boarders. There are hundreds of farmers who are doing this very thing, for Nature, in its happiest impulse, has supplied the fundamental essentials; the large roomy house provides comfortable and homelike shelter, the farm itself produces fresh eggs and vegetables, the dairy furnishes rich milk, cream, and butter. Thus, it is peculiarly fitting that the foothills country of New Jersey has been described as "a succession of garden spots in the Garden State of the Union." Nor is it strange that the pent-up residents of the big towns and cities feel a keen impatience to be off to his or her favorite place of recreation in the "foothills."

AN ENCHANTING NOOK

To enter this garden spot one passes through the suburban section described in another chapter. As the train speeds on beyond Somerville one is impressed with the unusual beauty of the scenery, especially at North Branch, the second stop, where the "north branch" of the Raritan River gurgles merrily down its little valley, while to the westward still the "everlasting hills" begin to lift themselves into view.

At White House, the beautiful Rockaway Valley, with its great farms and peach orchards, opens to the vision. From here a branch railroad runs to Mendham, through a succession of small villages and a country of rare charm, well watered and wooded. There are numerous places hereabouts where boarders may find farm life as it really is.

The village of Lebanon, the next on the main line, lies in the fertile valley of the same name. Peach farms and dairies make this literally a country of "peaches and cream," with lovely vistas on which to feast the eye at the same time. Annandale, a neighboring community of much the same character as Lebanon, is the station for Clinton and the ideal "vacation" section of which it is the centre. The little valley is rich in romantic walks and delightful drives and good fishing attracts the angler to the nearby brooks. There is also fine gunning.

High Bridge is a little more ambitious, and is large enough to have some manufacturing, but is still a rural community. The country here is very hilly, and there are many fine drives. The hills are sufficiently wooded to harbor small game, and the amateur sportsman will find much to please him in this section.

Westward from High Bridge the road enters the Musconetcong Valley, but the rails climb steadily upward, and the next fifteen miles give the traveler a vivid bird's-eye view of the country he is passing through. The villages here nestle cosily on the verdant hillsides, merging with the farming lands about them. At Hampton, called "the top of the world" on this division, there is disclosed a splendid panorama sweeping in all directions. From this summit, the railroad begins an easy descent to Phillipsburg in the famous valley of the Delaware. For as far as twenty-five miles, one can trace on a clear day the valleys of the Lehigh and the Delaware rivers. This town lies on the border of the State, in picturesque conjunction with its neighbor across the river, Easton, Pa. This but briefly describes a section of country that is growing more popular every year with lovers of rural life. Summer visitors are welcomed in all sections, and ample provision is made for their comfort and enjoyment throughout the warm weather months.

"LAKES THAT ARE

"FLOODED SHORES"

HIGH BRIDGE TO LAKE HOPATCONG

HILLS and valleys are the natural characteristics of Northern New Jersey, just as the pine-clad plains mark the lower half of the State, and the High Bridge Branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, leaving the main line at High Bridge, opens up to the seeker for the beauties of nature one of the finest sections of the State. The country through which this branch runs might well be called "Camera Land," for along the Raritan and Black Rivers, in the Schooley's Mountain and Budd's Lake section, and about Lake Hopatcong one is ever discovering charming nooks and sylvan glens that haunt the memory like a masterpiece of music.

Straightway on leaving High Bridge the train begins to climb, and every turn in the track opens up new vistas of enchantment. Winding brooks, crystal clear, separate rocky glens and well-tilled farms. Califon, just at the foot of the mountain, is a popular resort, as is Middle Valley, which is in a more open location. At German Valley, one of the old-time settlements of this part of the State, and which is itself a summer community of importance, stages for Schooley's Mountain meet all trains, affording a delightful cross-country drive over well-kept roads to the hotel and cottage colony on the summit of the mountain. At Flanders another pleasing side trip is afforded to Budd's Lake, a sheet of pure spring water on the high plateau. Five miles in circumference, its shores provide sites for hotels and cottages which are well patronized during the heated term.

Still northward, and at continually higher altitudes, come Ledgewood and Kenvil, and then Dover, the largest town in this section, whose 6,000 inhabitants entertain many more in its hotels and boarding-houses during the "outing" season. Just beyond is Rockaway, taking its name from the valley in which it nestles, and after one final long ascent, with the rails skirting the precipitous mountain side, and the broad sweep of the valley below, Lake Hopatcong, a thousand feet above tide water, is reached.

"Nature, pure and undefiled," is the keynote of Hopatcong, long famous as one of the finest mountain resorts in the East, and so accessible it is visited by many thousands every summer. Every picturesque spot about the lake has been left in its original beauty. Ten miles long and from one to three miles wide, of crystal clearness, and surrounded by wooded hills that bring grateful shade to its very edges, this body of water is often called the Lake George of New Jersey. Though there are many hotels and places of entertainment, out-door life is popular, too, the shores of the lake and the many islands being dotted with the white tents of campers and picnickers. Fine catches of fish reward the small army of anglers that flock hither, while in life afloat there is no lack of excitement. Small excursion steamers, motor-boats, sailboats, skiffs, and canoes abound, and the annual regatta and water carnival is an event of great interest and importance, bringing thousands from the immediate neighborhood, as well as from the metropolis. Notable among Nature's beautiful gifts to Lake Hopatcong is Floating Island, which, no matter what the height of water in the lake, always remains about a foot above the surface, and is covered with a luxuriant growth of flowers, its banks lined with wild roses. Then there are the Sister Islands, Halsey Island, and Raccoon Island, on any one of which it is a common sight to encounter gay picnic parties gathering shrubs and wild flowers, or merrily preparing lunch, and as merrily partaking of it.

A CAMPER'S HOME IN THE PRIMITIVE FOREST

"THE LITTLE ROADS THAT RAMBLE IN AND OUT"

ROWING IS A FAVORITE PASTIME

Ashore, there are a hundred enchanting byways and Indian trails to lure the explorer through the primitive woodland to such charming spots as Devil's Staircase, Bear Point, Cupid's Cascades, or Bishop's Falls. Or if one would ride—a-saddle or a-wheel—there are many cool and shaded roads, bordered by luxuriant alders and lichen and wild flowers of quaint and fantastic fashioning, and canopied by interlacing boughs of great firs and pines and chestnuts. The romantic mystery of some of these forest drives and rambles recalls with peculiar significance to those who first penetrate them the exquisite lines of Nesbit:

Where do they lead—the little roads that ramble in and out
And know the merry music of the brooklets roundabout?
They hail us and they call us as we journey swiftly by;
They flash their signals to us as upon our way we fly—
And then we fall to dreaming of a hush-held, peaceful way
That was the little road we knew in some fair yesterday.

A season at Lake Hopatecong to the lover of the open is incomparable with anything else in easy reach of New York, and a sunset from its beautiful shores makes one see with the poet's eyes:

On through Day's golden gateway in the West,
The Summer Sun, with splendor in its train,
Leaves Night behind, with sombre pigments blest,
To soothe the Earth, and fit for Day again.

New York, 82.6 miles. One way, $2.10; round trip, $3.00.

PARTIAL LAKE FRONT VIEW OF HOLLYWOOD GROUNDS

HOLLYWOOD HOTEL and COTTAGES—Raccoon Island, the ideal spot of Lake Hopatcong, N. J. No mosquitoes. Strictly first-class, commanding the finest view and best grounds; newly and handsomely furnished; best of cooking. Rates $2.50 to $3.50 per day—$10 to $20 weekly. Children under twelve years, half rates. Special inducements made to large families and also to those desiring accommodation during the months of June, September, October, and November. Lake Hopatcong is one thousand feet above the sea level, is delightfully situated on a lofty ledge of solid rock without any swamps or marsh lands. The Lake has ninety-five miles of shore line and is without doubt the finest Lake within five hundred miles of Greater New York. It is frequently referred to as "the Lake George of New Jersey." The fishing on this Lake and especially around the waters of Raccoon Island is the finest that can be obtained, as the Lake contains large quantities of bass, pickerel, and perch, and a catch of from twenty to forty pounds is a daily occurrence. There are also the best facilities for rowing, canoing, motorboating, sailing and other aquatic sports. Open May 25th to Nov. 15th, 1910. Tennis, bathing, and automobiling in addition to boating and fishing. Address Hollywood Hotel, Nolan's Point, Lake Hopatcong, N. J. Express Hollywood boat meets all trains.

LEHIGH AND WYOMING VALLEYS

CROSSING the Delaware River from Phillipsburg to Easton, the Central Railroad of New Jersey leaves the State from which it takes its name and enters the great coal-producing State of Pennsylvania, and for one hundred and twenty miles follows the picturesque and historical valleys of the Lehigh and the Wyoming, rich in reminiscences of Colonial days, but richer far in the great industrial centres that have grown up about the vast deposits of anthracite. This region is fitly called "The Switzerland of America," and the thousands of excursionists that visit the "Switchback" every summer get, in a day's outing, practically the same scenery that painters and travellers find so fascinating in far-off Europe.

For fully seventy miles in a northwesterly direction from Easton the railroad penetrates the valley of the Lehigh River, ministering to such cities as Bethlehem, with its great steel works, and the site of Lehigh University; Allentown, with all its diversified interests; and Mauch Chunk, with its coal mines. At Mauch Chunk is the famous "Switchback," the first railroad built in the United States. Originally a gravity railroad to carry coal from the top of Summit Hill to the river level, it has been transformed into a passenger railroad that carries its delighted thousands safely and quickly to the top of the 1,600-foot mountain, where a veritable fairyland is spread before the eye in every direction. This is one of the most popular one-day trips to be had for New Yorkers, and the Central Railroad meets all requirements by the operation of many special trains.

GUNNING ON THE MOUNTAIN STREAMS

Westward from Mauch Chunk comes White Haven, another of Nature's marvels which are so numerous in this mountainous region, and which has sprung into great popularity as a health resort. This is due largely to the remarkably dry quality of the air in this high altitude. There are many beautiful rides through the mountains and excellent trout fishing may be enjoyed in a number of neighboring streams. Summer visitors will find several excellent small hotels and boarding houses.

After a steady climb of ten miles to the crest of Mt. Nescopee, it being the highest point between New York and Buffalo, Glen Summit Springs is reached. This is one of the most famous summer resorts in the famous Blue Ridge region; it is given over entirely to the entertainment of summer visitors and the life centers in and about the large and fashionable Glen Summit Springs Hotel, perched like an eagle's eyrie on the top of the mountain near the Central Railroad Station. The environing country abounds in magnificent drives through the mountains, while there are also many charming walks, one of the most pleasant being to Fountain Lake, a mile and a half distant. Fountain Lake is a gem of Nature's setting in the bosom of her own hills. It is fed by the Nescopee Springs with a capacity of 150,000 gallons a day, and many mountain brooklets. A short distance beyond is Crystal Lake, another picturesque body of water, and six miles further, Bear Lake, small but beautifully situated.

From the crest of Nescopee there is a gradual decline into the "Vale of Wyoming"—renowned in song and story—and the far-famed hill country between the Susquehanna, the Delaware and the pleasant, well watered valley of the Lehigh. In the heart of the Wyoming Valley is situated the city of Wilkes-Barre, which the "Massacre of Wyoming" in 1778 has enshrined in history. For twenty-four miles the railroad invades this truly romantic country before arriving at Scranton, the end of the division and one of the big and rapidly growing cities of this great State. This is but a brief sketch of one of the most interesting day's travel in the East: adequate mention of all the attractive resorts is not possible in this space, but for lovers of the historical, the romantic, and the picturesque there will be found along the course of these two wonderful valleys something to suit the needs, the taste and the purse of everyone.

BREATH OF THE FOREST AND SCENT OF THE PINE

IN THE HEART OF THE PINE BELT

NATURE was in a beneficent mood when she made the country that environs Lakewood. Only a few miles from the Atlantic coast, here are thousands of acres of pines, deep-rooted in sandy soil, that give the traveller the sense of being near the shores of Lake Superior, and with the same ozone-laden air that has made that Northwestern country famous.

Lakewood is only thirty years old, but it has come to be a winter necessity to the business men of New York. Only ninety minutes' ride from the city, the man of affairs with a temporary or permanent residence in Lakewood can have an hour for golfing, motoring, or driving after his exacting day in the office, the bank, or on the "Street" is finished.

The climate is a wonderful combination of Southern mildness and Northern vigor. The porous sandy soil, through which the water is quickly absorbed after a rainfall, leaves the ground dry and the atmosphere free from moisture. The temperature at

"FIELDS THAT ARE

EAT AND OF GRAIN"

Lakewood is usually ten or more degrees higher in winter than in New York or Philadelphia, and the opportunities for open-air life and all kinds of outdoor sports all through the fall, winter, and spring are a strong attraction both to the class of wealth and leisure and to those of moderate means. There are several golf links in the neighborhood, while driving, horseback riding, motor-ing, cross-country runs to hounds, and polo tournaments are popular diversions. The polo contests are held on the grounds of Georgiencourt, the palatial country estate of George J. Gould.

Within the village limits is Lake Carasaljo, two and a half miles long and half a mile wide, the shores being very irregular, and skirted by the ever-present pines, through which a romantic driveways winds its way entirely around the lake. Cathedral Drive leads one into the heart of the lofty pines, and makes a scene of rare and poetic beauty. Seen by moonlight it is a thing to be treasured in the memory.

The hotels are spacious and palatial, and cater satisfactorily to the tastes of the exacting public that throngs them during the season. The cottage colony is large and important, and there are many magnificent private estates.

The transportation facilities afforded by the Central Railroad of New Jersey are of the best. The splendidly constructed roadbed makes the high speed of the trains perfectly safe, while the parlor-car and coach equipment and the use of smokeless hard coal make travel by this road a pleasure.

Of Lakehurst, which lies eight miles to the south of Lakewood, much that has been said of that place can be written in in a minor key. The village is not so large, its hotels are not so numerous, its cottage colony not so extensive. But it has the same salubrious winter climate, the same dry sandy soil, the same belt of health-giving pines. Being well within the sandy pine belt, the miles of beautiful walks and bridle paths through the piney woods, together with the drives and the cranberry gardens, afford a variety of scenery and a closeness to Nature rarely to be found. Horicon Lake, a couple of miles in circuit, forest-edged and picturesque, and marking the southern border, provides opportunities for water sports and skating. Lakehurst is highly regarded by those in search of recuperation for in the breath of the pine forests is found the very essence of invigoration. Incidentally, these forest tracts breathe much of romantic tradition. From the Revolutionary days when Tory raiders rendezvoused in the wooded fastnesses to the times that Joseph Bonaparte, exiled from the Spanish throne hunted wild boars in its depths, this vast wilderness has played an interesting part in history. Lakehurst has excellent hotel accommodations, as well as the same excellent train service that Lakewood enjoys.

SEASON OCTOBER 1ST TO MAY 20TH

THE SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE

EVER since Henry Hudson landed at Barnegat in 1609, and found great numbers of Indians fishing and hunting, the Barnegat Bay region has grown steadily in reputation as the best fishing and hunting grounds on the Atlantic Coast. In fact Old Barnegat, with its three hundred and fifty square miles of quiet and safe waters behind the barrier of Long Beach, has been known for generations as the sportsmen's paradise. Its waters are alive with almost every known species of the finny tribe, and for at least nine months in the year there is the finest fishing in the bay, while lovers of duck and snipe shooting know it as the best hunting grounds in the Eastern States during the spring and fall. Weakfish, bluefish, and striped bass run from May to November. On the ocean side of the Long Beach barrier, surf fishing attracts many seasoned and successful veterans in the time-honored sport, and famous individual catches provide an interesting chapter of the region's legends. Channel bass and drumfish may be found close to the beach, and sea bass are caught both in the bay and outside the inlet. Sandbars and grass islands are the home of wild fowl in every variety. Houseboating is a popular mode of living at Barnegat, and craft of every description and size can be secured for a week or for the season at reasonable rates. Toms River, to the north of Barnegat, and Beach Haven, to the south, with Pinewald, Lanoka Forked River, Ostrom and Waretown intervening, are other points on Barnegat Bay that have their loyal followers, and each has its individual charm.

This section of the coast is adequately provided for as to transportation by the Toms River Branch of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and frequent trains make the whole bayside readily accessible. Beach Haven is also reached by way of Whittings on the main line of the New Jersey Southern Division. It is a charming resort, situated on the southern end of Long Beach, and cut off from the mainland by Little Egg Harbor. The Atlantic Ocean laps the eastern side of Long Beach Island. The tranquil waters of the harbor—five miles in length—yield great quantities of game fish to the sportsmen and give opportunities for an infinite variety of pleasure craft. Sailing is one of the most popular diversions hereabouts, while motor boating, too, has devotees in large numbers. Anywhere about the bay catboats and sloops as well as power craft may be rented at reasonable rates.

LESS THAN AN HOUR FROM BROADWAY

WITHIN THE SUBURBAN LIMITS

TRANSPORTATION—rapid, safe, and economical—and an attractive and healthful locality to live in are the prime requisites for the commuter. He wants his home, which he builds for the future, to be in a growing community, where his family may have the comforts and advantages of the city, without the constraint and congestion of urban restrictions.

With constantly increasing and improving transportation facilities, the commuter's horizon is continually widening, and to-day localities that a few years ago were thought to be too far from New York for any one to live in except those locally interested are becoming more and more the homes of men who find their business activities in the metropolis.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey, with its two convenient stations in New York—one at the foot of Liberty Street, in the heart of the financial and business centre; the other at the foot of West Twenty-third Street, in close touch with the theatrical, shopping, and hotel districts, and both within easy reach of all the principal lines of local travel, subway, elevated, and surface—makes an ideal highway for the commuter, who travels twice daily between home and business, summer and winter, and naturally requires stability and steadiness of service.

The many rapidly growing cities and towns along the splendidly constructed and safely operated system of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, which are drawing to them yearly increasing numbers of home builders, testify in no uncertain manner to the success of the suburban business of this great railroad. From as far away as Flemington, the county seat of Hunterdon County and the terminus of the "South Branch," every city and village between there and New York has felt the impetus of growth due to the constantly expanding suburban service of the Central Railroad. Frequent trains, low rates of fare, and prompt and reliable service have made possible real home life for thousands who formerly were compelled to live in cheerless apartments in the great city.

Bayonne, that sits with its feet in New York Bay, and is the first important stopping point on the Central Railroad, is ideal for the commuter who would not go far afield. There are five stations within the city limits, with attractive residential sites within easy reach; indeed New York's business centre is more accessible than to many dwellers of the greater city itself.

A few minutes farther on is the city of Elizabeth, also so well known as to need no description. Many stations and frequent trains make this city and its suburb of El Mora popular places of residence among New York business men. Elizabeth prides itself on its clean city government and its consequent low tax rate. It covers twelve square miles of territory, has excellent schools and is constantly recruiting its commuting population.

Leaving Elizabeth, in rapid succession come El Mora, Roselle, Cranford, Garwood, Westfield (where fully 75 per cent. of the heads of families are commuters), Fanwood, Netherwood, and

A MORE PRETENTIOUS SUBURBAN RESIDENCE

AND DREAM

Plainfield. Plainfield's residents proudly call it "The Queen City of New Jersey," and it has many qualifications for the title. Social life is a feature of the city. Fully fifty trains each way from Plainfield, many of them expresses without intermediate stops, give this suburb the finest transportation facilities in the State.

Beyond Plainfield comes Bound Brook, which is growing rapidly, and then we are at Somerville, popular for years as a summer resort, but becoming more and more a year-round home as the commuting zone is widened. At Somerville is the junction of the South Branch, which carries the traveller a few miles through a rural section to Flemington. For those who want more land than can be easily had in the larger communities, Roycefield, Flagtown, Neshanic, Woodfern, Riverside, and Three Bridges offer ideal sites for homes. Flemington offers many advantages. It is on high ground, and from the summit of Thatcher's Hill fifty miles of country in every direction is spread to view. This town is the centre of the middle Jersey peach belt, and health and happiness are the portion of its inhabitants.

All in all, no suburban travellers in and out of New York City have better transit facilities and pleasanter surroundings than the patrons of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.
